KINGSTON
Withdrawal of a health textbook for high school juniors and seniors got a lengthy going over at Thursday night's meeting of the Kingston Board of Education, with supporters and opponents of the move engaging in a lengthy debate.

Withdrawal was announced at the Aug. 28 meeting by Louis A. Salzmann, superintendent of schools, who said that "Introductory Health: A Vital Issue" would be replaced by supplemental texts and a rewritten version of the sex education chapter on which objections had centered.

Paul Keller of Woodstock said that "censorship of student subject matter...can only be detrimental in the long run. Restrictions on presentation of all responsible viewpoints concerning human sexuality would be a debasement of the educational process."

Thomas Mattingly of Kingston said he had contacted state officials of the Right to Life organization and was told that a woman who objected at a previous meeting to use of the textbook was not authorized to make the statement on behalf of Right to Life.

Subject

Mattingly also said that people had the option of exempting their children from the health class on religious grounds "so we are not forcing something into people's minds."

Eugene Loughlin, a teacher for 18 years, said he did not oppose children being schooled in birth control "but I don't feel it should be taught in the classroom. It cannot be taught dispassionately. As a Roman Catholic parent, I object to teaching this subject in a public school setting."

H. Richard Barnett, affiliated with the Mid-Hudson Region of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, defended the textbook, saying its only fault was superficial treatment of the sex subject.

"I am concerned because the administration returned the books after hearing only one segment of the community. Why didn't you submit it to a cross-section?" he asked.

Lillian Loughlin, Ulster County Right to Life chairman, said her group takes no position on sex education. "I do not want Right to Life labeled as taking a position for or against sex education," she said.

Of Debate

Keller asked who had made the decision to send the book back to the publisher and was told by Ward Todd, board president, that the administrative staff had made the decision.

George Washbourne, assistant superintendent for secondary education, said the book had been considered along with six others. He said it was ordered with the provision that the sex education chapter be eliminated "because it was not in keeping with the position of the board" and was returned when this was not done.

"We must respect all viewpoints," Washbourne said. "I don't think we should avoid the issue but should present it so the child can make a choice."

Boycott Ends as Buses Roll

By Hugh Reynolds

ELLENVILLE
It's quite different today," said Ellenville Superintendent of Schools James Evergetis. "The buses are packed."

The difference is an agreement hammered out last night in a special meeting of the board of education with parents and bus companies which will allow for the pickup of children even though they may live within the two and three mile limits dictated by austerity budgeting.

The austerity budget, in effect since district voters turned down a special proposition for transportation (costing some $86,000) extends the limitations for bus transportation from 7/10ths of a mile and one mile to two miles and three miles for elementary and secondary school children, respectively.

On Wednesday, the first day of school, parents in the outlying areas walked their children to school, causing massive traffic tieups on Route 209 and other main roads.

Thursday, the parents kept their children home in the face of warnings from state police that further traffic tieups would not be tolerated and police escorts for their children walking along heavily traveled roads (without sidewalks) would not be made available.

"The state police say you can't walk and the school district says they won't provide the transportation," said Tommy Thompson of Napanoch, leader of the protesting parents. "So what's the alternative?" he asked Thursday morning.

The alternative, as a special parents committee headed by Joe Demskie found out on Thursday night, was to allow school buses, space permitting, to pick up any child walking to school along a regular route.

The school board, meeting in executive session with Demskie's committee and its bus operators, issued the following statement shortly before 10 p.m. Thursday night:

"During the emergency period until Sept. 19 the board will adhere to the austerity budget. The board will continue its past policy that it will not refuse a ride to a student if the bus has not reached its capacity along the current bus routes. No additional public funds will be spent."

"We feel we've accomplished what we set out to do," Demskie told the Freeman today. "We've gotten some emergency measures pushed through to keep the majority of the kids off the road without spending any additional money."

Evergetis cited the bus companies for their cooperation. "They've agreed to absorb any extra expenses that might be entailed," he said.

Evergetis estimated that the current agreement will cover almost every child in the outlying areas although he allowed that "some children in the village who live outside the limits will not be picked up."

Kingston ARea Joint Municipal Survey Committee's recommendations or any other interested citizen that they forward to me in writing any sanitary landfill site recommendations they may have along with, but not limited to, land acquisition, cost factors, and the advantages and disadvantages of each respective site that they feel will assist in solving this problem," Koenig concluded.

Koenig had previously taken the position that Chapel Street was the city's only alternative to Kingston Point. In the past month, however, the board of public works, voted with Koenig's concurrence—to raise the level of Kingston Point thereby increasing its capacity and longevity. This will be the third extension of Kingston Point, originally scheduled for depletion in mid-1973.

Israelis, Egyptians Ink Historic Mideast Peace Pact

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Israeli and Egyptian military men will begin talks next week on implementing the new, U.S.-mediated Middle East peace agreement.

The two nations have agreed to work out the details of the disengagement accord in two weeks of military negotiations and implement the pact within five months.

Egyptian and Israeli delegates signed the new Sinai Desert troop separation agreement Thursday despite a last-minute scowl from the Soviet Union.

The Kremlin, left out of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's shuttle negotiations for the pact, boycotted the signing ceremony at the Palais des Nations conference hall.

In Cairo, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat angrily accused the Soviets of being "seditionary rumor mongers" with the goal of "blowing up the Arab situation."

The United States, reportedly acting in deference to Soviet feelings, also stayed away from the ceremony at the ornate palace along the shore of Lake Geneva.

Egyptian Maj. Gen. Taha el Magdoub and Israeli diplomat Mordechai Gazit, two relatively low-ranking officials, signed the accord Thursday afternoon at a cold, brisk ceremony in the palace's frescoed council chamber.

The two delegates sat at separate tables, never smiled, never shook hands, never spoke. They arrived separately and left separately and barely noticed each other's presence.

But the agreement, hailed by both sides as "a significant step" toward peace, committed Egypt and Israel to use the bargaining table instead of the battlefield to settle their four-war, quarter-century conflict.

The two superpowers are chairmen of the Middle East peace conference, but the United States has favored step-by-step negotiations while the Soviet Union has backed full-scale talks in Geneva.

Under the provision most criticized by the Kremlin, the United States would send up to 200 American volunteers to operate electronic surveillance stations in the Sinai.

"In Washington, President Ford reportedly told Senate and House leaders Thursday he hoped Congress would approve the provision within two weeks despite objections from some lawmakers."

The pact calls for an Israeli pullback from 3,500 square miles of occupied Egyptian territory, but leaves the Jewish state in control of 85 percent of the Sinai Peninsula.

In exchange for the return of the Abu Rudeis oil fields and the Mitla and Giddi mountain passes, Egypt agreed to let Israeli cargo through the Suez Canal.

The two countries also pledged "not to resort to the threat of use of force or military blockade against each other."

Koenig Signs Chapel St. Rejection

KINGSTON
Mayor Francis R. Koenig has signed legislation rejecting the Chapel Street site as a regional landfill but says his administration will continue its efforts to find an alternative to the soon to be depleted Kingston Point landfill.

"The people of Kingston, through their elected representatives"—the Common Council voted 10-3 against the Chapel Street site on Tuesday—"have voiced their opposition to the proposed regional landfill in the Eleventh Ward of our city," Koenig said in a press release today.

"The recommendations of the Greater Kingston Area Joint Municipal Survey Committee have been rejected by the Common Council due to increased traffic, high site development costs of the taking of useful land for a sanitary landfill," Koenig said. The Council also cited pollution as a factor in its decision.

"After approximately four months and talking to thousands of our city residents concerning this most important issue, I feel at this time it is in the best interests of the residents and taxpayers of our city to reject the recommendations of the Greater Kingston Area Joint Municipal Survey Committee and accordingly, I have, therefore, approved the resolution of the Common Council concurring with them in their deliberations," Koenig said.

"However, the problem of finding an adequate site for the disposal of our solid wastes is still with us and I can assure the residents of Kingston that I will continue to do all in my power and work closely with the Common Council and all interested citizens, as we work together to find a solution to the sanitary landfill problem. I would respectfully request of all those persons who have shown a deep concern in the Greater Kingston ARea Joint Municipal Survey Committee's recommendations or any other interested citizen that they forward to me in writing any sanitary landfill site recommendations they may have along with, but not limited to, land acquisition, cost factors, and the advantages and disadvantages of each respective site that they feel will assist in solving this problem," Koenig concluded.

Koenig had previously taken the position that Chapel Street was the city's only alternative to Kingston Point. In the past month, however, the board of public works, voted with Koenig's concurrence—to raise the level of Kingston Point thereby increasing its capacity and longevity. This will be the third extension of Kingston Point, originally scheduled for depletion in mid-1973.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices increased 0.8 percent in August, but job gains by factory workers last month held the unemployment rate at 8.4 percent, the Labor Department said today.

The rise in the Wholesale Price Index pushed the annual rate to a near double-digit rate of 9.6 percent. The index measures costs to bulk purchasers, which soon will be passed along to the consumer.

The department said there were 7.8 million people unemployed in August — unchanged from July — while the total number of employed persons rose by 250,000 following a much bigger jump in the previous month. A total of 85.4 million persons had jobs last month, the department said.

The department said employment among factory workers jumped by 200,000 — the first such increase since May, 1974, when auto production picked up at the conclusion of the Arab oil embargo. A total of 22.4 million persons were employed in goods producing industries.

In August, steel mills were working overtime to meet increased orders in anticipation of a price increase and autoworkers benefited from improved sales at the end of the model year.

The 8.4 percent rate in August compared to a 1975 peak of 9.2 percent last May.

The jobless rate for adult males fell significantly from 7 percent to 6.6 percent and the rate for adult women dropped slightly from 7.9 percent to 7.7 percent.

Hard core unemployment worsened as the average duration increased from 15.4 to 15.7 weeks.

Unemployment increased among teenagers, minorities and full-time workers. The jobless rate for white workers continued a gradual decline and stood at 7.6 percent in August.

The average work week and earnings both increased. Average hourly earnings rose 3 cents in August up to $4.55 and were up 29 cents from a year ago. The average work week increased 12 minutes to 36.3 hours. In manufacturing the increase was 18 minutes.

The gain in manufacturing employment included an increase of 35,000 jobs in the electrical equipment industry, 30,000 each in primary metals and textiles, 20,000 in fabricated metals and furniture and 15,000 in paper and wood products.

Administration officials have said inflation as reflected by a rise in the wholesale index was the most serious impediment to a revival of national economic health.

Office of Aging Director Calls for 'In-Home Services'

POUGHKEEPSIE
A call for in-home services for senior citizens, rural transportation for the elderly, tax relief for elderly renters and consideration of senior citizens who are small electric users, came recently from Mrs. Antoinette Tennant, director of Ulster County's Office of the Aging.

Giving testimony at a recent hearing before members of the New York State Office for the Aging in Poughkeepsie on the state's 1976 plan for expenditures of funds, Mrs. Tennant said she feels the projected "model systems" comprehensive in-home services plan should be given high priority. The state plan calls for avoiding institutionalization of the elderly when possible.

Commenting further, Mrs. Tennant said "the appointment of county ombudsmen to act for the elderly client is cases within the local nursing home is probably overdue. But, she said, she thinks the state plan to train lay personnel to act as an alternative to institutional care should proceed cautiously. "Skills not easily acquired are frequently involved and can be given only by the trained professional," she advised. "When the elderly need less, they should probably not be in nursing homes but in their own homes," she said.

Mrs. Tennant told the members that "in addition to items included in your planned strategy for new legislation at the state and federal levels, I suggest that more emphasis be placed on transportation assistance for the rural areas. Current plans, at the federal grant level aim at the urban transportation needs and not the rural lack," she said. "Removal of many of the restrictions now in effect for the franchises of existing bus lines, should be removed, to allow better use of the public highways by new services from others from new funding sources," she said.

Mrs. Tennant also told those at the hearing that "Seniors do not have the income to meet the costs of utilities fuel adjustment charges. If exceptions have been made for the large unit service users, why not for the seniors who are among the very small service users?" she asked.

"While the stated purpose of the Office of the Aging is to serve the seniors and minorities, I find very few of either of these types of persons at the state planning level," Mrs. Tennant said, adding that "more of both should be at the state level to plan for the needs of the people whose needs they would best understand and methods which would be acceptable to maintaining the dignity of the 60-plus and minority group."

Regarding elderly renters, she feels they should be given some consideration such as that given home owners in the way of property tax relief.

"Another priority should be given to some 'circuit breaker' legislation to return to the senior citizen annually, some rebate on his rent and utility as is done in the State of Connecticut," she said, adding that she has sent copies of the Connecticut law to local legislators for their consideration.

Attenweiler Is Candidate

ZENA
James Attenweiler of Zena has announced his candidacy for a board of education seat in the special Oct. 1 election by the Kingston City Schools Consolidated to fill a vacancy. "If elected, I will serve with an open mind on all issues except one—the proposed new high school in Lake Katrine," Attenweiler said. "That has been a dead issue since the voters spoke in May. Unless the public indicates differently, no extensive building program should be undertaken in the district."

Attenweiler is a certified public accountant with 25 years of diversified financial experience with a public accounting firm and three manufacturing companies. Since 1969 he has been corporate controller of Rotron Inc.

Attenweiler, a veteran of service with the U.S. Army, has previous civic experience including four years on the board of education in Green Brook Township, New Jersey, which he served as finance chairman. He is presently vice president of the Ulster County Chamber of Commerce and a director of the Ulster County Council of Girl Scouts.

His two children remaining at home are Mary, a senior at Kingston High School, and Joann, a fifth grade student at Zena Elementary School.

Congressmen to Take 'Careful Look' at Mideast Agreement

By Hugh Reynolds

WASHINGTON, D.C.

With comparisons to the American involvement in Vietnam almost inevitable, Ulster County's three congressmen plan to take a very careful look at the "Kissinger agreement" for interim peace between Egypt and Israel.

Comments ranged from Hamilton Fish's "serious reservations" to Benjamin Gilman's "concern" to Matthew McHugh's "I would hope to support it."

While all the details of the complicated agreement are still not out—Fish, for one, insists that "the fullest disclosure possible is necessary"—all three congressmen agree that the gut issue with the American public is American involvement in the form of up to 200 men as monitors of the peace.

"I am concerned about the stationing of American personnel in the buffer area," Gilman, the 26th District Republican said. "I would anticipate many questions being asked of Secretary Kissinger in this regard as to the number and disposition of those Americans, their safety and safeguards against the possibility of American military involvement."

"The people are understandably concerned about United States involvement in a technical sense," said Fish, representing the 25th District. Fish recalled that American involvement in Vietnam started "with just a few advisors."

McHugh looks at the situation differently. The freshman Democrat from the 27th District suggests that the similarities between Sinai-75 and Vietnam-61 are exaggerated.

"I think there are significant differences between the situations," he said. "We're obviously not sending military people to take sides as in Vietnam."

Fish remains leary over any American involvement. Suggesting that Kissinger would have to speak to the American people "with great candor," Fish said he had a number of questions he wanted answered. "I'd like to know why it is considered that there will be little or no risk to our people and I'd like to know why the overflights we've been conducting the past few years are not sufficient to supply intelligence."

McHugh has his own ideas. "I don't know why they insisted on Americans," he said. "I can only conclude that both sides want the United States to have a great stake in maintaining that peace. The United Nations has been there and there have been hostilities." McHugh allowed that there were risks inherent in the agreement. "It's risky for us; we certainly don't want to get directly involved in a conflict," he said.

"But I think there are greater risks involved in a no agreement situation that could clearly involve the United States and the Soviet Union in a confrontation that could lead to war."

Fish tends to agree. "It is an important step towards peace in the Middle East," he said. "Egypt has committed itself contractually for the first time to forego the military option in its disputes with the state of Israel. In return Israel has taken some calculated risks but these are of course peace risks."

"I think on the whole it is a good agreement," Fish and McHugh seem to view the mood of their colleagues in Washington as receptive but cautious.

McHugh, for instance, said there's a good deal of concern, in view of domestic shortages, about the amount of money the United States will pour into this agreement. "I've heard figures from $3 billion to $5 billion," McHugh said. "Those are significant figures especially with existing conditions at home."

Fish is concerned about another aspect of the agreement whereby Israel gives up its Sinai oil fields and the United States guarantees its oil supplies. "They gave up oil fields that provided an estimated 6 percent of their production," Fish said. "Can we afford to supply that oil?"

Fish says that public opinion will be a significant factor in his final decision. "The fundamental thing is that congress will have to reflect the views of the American people and the American people will have to understand it in order to express those views."

Spada Responds to Kirschner

KINGSTON Republican County Clerk Albert Spada, under criticism recently by his Democratic opponent Legislator Lewis C. Kirschner (D-Dist. 6) for not providing "public answers" on the status of the investigation of the theft of funds from the motor vehicle department to-day scored Kirschner for being naive.

Spada said that Kirschner is "obviously unacquainted with the duties, responsibilities and limitations of the office of Ulster County Clerk."

"He should be advised that this office has no authority to force the State Bureau of Criminal Investigation and Ulster County Sheriff's Department into premature revelations that might hamper their investigations," Spada said, adding that "these agencies have asked that no statements concerning details of the theft be issued" by Spada's office. They also requested that all questions concerning the theft be directed to them, he said.

"Does my opponent propose that a list of suspects be published by the Sheriff's Department and the BCI? Astute and thoughtful individuals will realize that such a proposal is out of the question," Spada said.

"As made public earlier, only four employees had the combination to the motor vehicle bureau safe. Not one of them has refused to take a lie detector test at any time."

"Yes, the public has a right to know," and I fervently uphold that right. But no one has the moral right to ruin innocent persons' lives by naming them as suspects during the course of an investigation," Spada explained.

"The amount taken from the motor vehicle bureau was approximately $10,334. (Of that amount, $4,816.75 was later recovered.) Two state agencies have been conducting audits, the results of which are due within a few days' time. Until then, our loss figure of about $5,500 is only an estimate. The insurance company, of course, will make full restitution; the taxpayers are not 'out of pocket,' Spada said.

"As to Kirschner's suggestion that an armed guard accompany employees making bank deposits, I am heartily in favor of this," Spada said. We did at one time have a deputy sheriff who provided this protection, but he was removed by former Sheriff William B. Martin. I have always advocated that a deputy be on duty not only in the county office building, but in all other office buildings used by the county," he continued.

Spada said that "oddy-enough, during my opponent's years as a legislator, he has never introduced any resolutions or legislation to add security to the county office building, nor has he made suggestions to improve security within the confines of the county Clerk's office itself."

"If my opponent has further questions with regard to this matter, and if he is not satisfied with the replies of the BCI and Sheriff's Department, perhaps he could take time to read the report filed by Legislator Lester C. Elmendorf, chairman of the County Clerk Committee. This committee, which is comprised of both Democrats and Republicans, attended a meeting with the Sheriff's Department and the BCI during which their questions were answered. The committee's report on this meeting is available at the office of the Clerk of the Ulster County Legislature."

NEWBURGH State Senator Richard E. Schermerhorn resumed his long running feud with Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey today, responding to Hinchey's statements last month concerning lulu paid state legislators, along with a number of other issues of local interest.

The 40th District Republican stated at the onset that he voted against lulu—while producing evidence that Hinchey voted in favor of them—and that further, "I have donated the excess income that I received in 1975 and 1974 to local charities. This has already been done." Schermerhorn receives an additional $5,000 a year for various committee chairmanships he holds in the Upper House.

Hinchey's criticism wasn't over the amount committee chairmen are paid, but rather the method of waiting until adjournment to vote the money. He wants it budgeted as a regular item.

Schermerhorn took particular exception to Hinchey's response to one of it," the veteran Republican state senator said. "This is a 'revolt' against the often arbitrary mandates of the State and Federal welfare bureaucracy and it's long overdue."

"Such action is simple common sense," the legislator said. "State and federal bureaucrats are guilty of the worst kind of faulty judgment when they force these excessive burdens upon the counties."

The senator also submitted

Assembly voting records showing Hinchey had supported "major tax increases" and an additional income tax.

Hinchey supported increased income taxes as a means to pay for additional aid to education, rather than the property tax.

Likewise, on UDC legislation which Hinchey freely admits supporting, Ulster County has two UDC projects.

"I saw a picture of Mr. Hinchey hand in hand with Gov. Carey and this is exactly what it has been since his election," Schermerhorn declared.

Chief targets of the protests are the maze of welfare regulations "often arbitrary in nature," which impose needless costs and restrictions on the counties. As one county welfare official stated—"Albany and Washington make all the rules—we can't exercise any sense or judgment—we could do a far better job and save public money if we could make decisions to fit the local situation."

Mason called for regulations which would provide more "home rule and discretion" in the administration of public welfare.

Mason Favors 'Welfare Revolt'

HOBART Senator Edwyn E. Mason (R-48th) said today he favors strong united action by the state's counties in protest against rising welfare bills they are unable to meet. If this is a "revolt"—I'm all in favor of it—it's long overdue," he declared.

If a "revolt" against these outrageous welfare costs will get something done about this situation, then I fully support it," the veteran Republican state senator said. "This is a 'revolt' against the often arbitrary mandates of the State and Federal welfare bureaucracy and it's long overdue."

"Such action is simple common sense," the legislator said. "State and federal bureaucrats are guilty of the worst kind of faulty judgment when they force these excessive burdens upon the counties."

Senator Mason called for a meeting of all upstate county welfare officials together with state legislators and congressmen at some upstate center such as Utica or Syracuse. He said, "We need to take united action and we should not be deterred by noises from the welfare bureaucrats in Albany—this affects every citizen of this state and in self defense we have got to take action or face financial disaster—the present desperate plight of New York City is largely due to runaway welfare costs. The welfare situation is becoming uncontrollable—at present there are approximately 1,500,000 receiving welfare help in this state, over 1,000,000 in New York City."

Mason was referring to the current statewide controversy which has found counties from the Hudson to the Niagara refusing to borrow money to pay staggering welfare bills under programs imposed by federal and state government.

Chief targets of the protests are the maze of welfare regulations "often arbitrary in nature," which impose needless costs and restrictions on the counties. This has already been done." Schermerhorn receives an additional $5,000 a year for various committee chairmanships he holds in the Upper House.

Hinchey's criticism wasn't over the amount committee chairmen are paid, but rather the method of waiting until adjournment to vote the money. He wants it budgeted as a regular item.

Schermerhorn took particular exception to Hinchey's response to one of it," the veteran Republican state senator said. "This is a 'revolt' against the often arbitrary mandates of the State and Federal welfare bureaucracy and it's long overdue."

"Such action is simple common sense," the legislator said. "State and federal bureaucrats are guilty of the worst kind of faulty judgment when they force these excessive burdens upon the counties."

The senator also submitted

Assembly voting records showing Hinchey had supported "major tax increases" and an additional income tax.

Hinchey supported increased income taxes as a means to pay for additional aid to education, rather than the property tax.

Likewise, on UDC legislation which Hinchey freely admits supporting, Ulster County has two UDC projects.

"I saw a picture of Mr. Hinchey hand in hand with Gov. Carey and this is exactly what it has been since his election," Schermerhorn declared.

Officials Answer Charges

ROSENDALE Rosendale Village Mayor Raivo Puusemp and Trustee Barbara DeStefano charged today that "a small but vocal minority" of residents has "exaggerated" incidents of crime and violence that have occurred in the village in recent weeks.

The two village officials have come under increasing attack by an ad hoc citizens' group which claims that authorities haven't adequately responded to what they term a "crisis" situation.

In a joint statement released today, Puusemp and DeStefano stated, "Rosendale is not the deplorable hot spot of crime and violence that a small, but vocal, minority claim it to be. The exaggerations of this group do an injustice to the rest of the citizens of Rosendale by creating a negative image. The lawless picture of our village painted by the spokesman of this group is simply not true."

An organization known as Concerned Citizens of Rosendale, under the apparent leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mastro, has severely criticized the village board for its police protection and crime prevention policies. The group's protest was prompted by a disturbance at "The Well" (a local tavern) in late June, a Main Street stabbing in late August and a series of less serious incidents in between. At one point, the organization called for the resignation of Puusemp and DeStefano.

In their statement today, however, the two village officials maintained that they have taken definitive steps to keep the village peaceful.

"As a result of those incidents," they said, "and before the indignant outcry for our resignations, we increased our night shift by 25 hours per week, as well as initiating radio assisted foot patrols for Main Street. These steps give the village more coverage than it has had in the past and hopefully enough. Should we need more, we will again reassess the situation."

The two board members pointed out, however, that "there is a cost attached to added protection. If the citizens of Rosendale feel they want full-time protection, we can provide it, but at the expense of higher taxes."

There has also been some suggestion that out-of-town residents are responsible for many of the disturbances, particularly those that occur at local taverns and bars. The concerned citizens have accused Puusemp of condoning the transient trade.

In response to that, the board members commented, "It is not our position with the law to categorically exclude anyone from our village. We have never heard a more irresponsible statement. What would they have us do—post no entry signs at village boundaries? The law, fortunately, is intended to protect us all."

Darling Would Involve Citizens

KINGSTON Republican candidate for mayor, William K. Darling, in what he terms a "major campaign pronouncement," declared today that if elected "I will seek to more fully utilize citizens in solving Kingston's difficulties."

Darling went on to say, "As I see the problems confronting Kingston, there has not been enough input from the general public. Those in government while often in tune with the public's wishes, often lack the expertise to fully understand the questions before them."

Darling would establish "task forces" to tackle specific problems that confront the city. "Members of the task force would represent divergent groups and opinions so that all sides of a subject can be fully aired," he said.

"An excellent example," said Darling, was "Tuesday's Common Council meeting at which time citizen involvement reached one of the more dramatic hours in Kingston." Referring to the Concerned Citizens of Greater Kingston's successful protest against the regional landfill at Chapel Street, Darling said, "On that occasion an independent private citizens group demonstrated before our city fathers the ability to present valuable input in attempting to solve the city's problems."

Darling's task forces would file written reports to the mayor and Common Council "but most importantly to the public at large."

"The greater the participation of the public in government the more responsive it becomes to the people's needs and desires. Individuals respond well to an administration that they feel part of," Darling concluded.

Water for Trenton Residents May Be Flowing by Tonight

TRENTON (UPI) — Engineers hoped to have a moderate supply of water flowing to Trenton and its suburbs by tonight for the first time in five days. More than 250,000 have been living under emergency conditions since a pump malfunctioned during the weekend.

"We're just waiting for the cement to dry," said a city official Thursday as workers mended a concrete culvert that cracked Sunday under the weight of a million gallons of overflow water from the city reservoir. The malfunctioning pump sent water whooshing into the drain, knocking out service to residents of the capital city area.

Engineers expected the cement on the repaired culvert to dry by tonight, allowing them to prime three pumps to make certain they are balanced and operating properly.

The initial pumping would still only provide enough water for drinking and sanitary needs. Officials said they hope to have up to 35 million gallons, the normal daily usage, flowing by Saturday night or Sunday.

At least 70 percent of the city and four suburban townships was short of water Thursday as a hose and truck lifeline provided eight million gallons of outside water.

Officials banned industrial use of city water until Monday and recommended that the few residents who were able to draw water from their taps not take baths, water lawns or flush toilets frequently.

Gov. Brendan Byrne urged state employees with access to water to bring a gallon or two to work to share with their colleagues.

Residents carried pails of water home from Army tank trucks parked around the city for cooking and occasional toilet flushing.

More than 700 volunteer firefighters, some on 48-hour shifts, manned supply hoses and pipelines connected to outside water companies and leading to all known area wells.

But supplemental supplies were insufficient.

"The holding action finally gave," Trenton Mayor Arthur Holland said Thursday after the imported water failed to keep up even with sharply restricted needs. In addition, health officials warned a possible health hazard existed because of silt in the pipelines as the last of the water reserve was drawn. They recommended boiling all tap water.

More than 30,000 state workers returned to their jobs Thursday after a one-day holiday forced by the water shortage.

Lewis Klockner, city water works director, said the Sunday breakdown at the filtration plant along the Delaware River bank may have been caused by human error.

Scott Is Linked To Patty Hearst

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The government has named activist sports writer Jack Scott a target of its investigation into reports fugitive heiress Patricia Hearst was hidden on a Pennsylvania farm.

It also threatened to jail his wife for her silence before a grand jury.

The revelation came in open court Thursday during an immunity hearing for Scott's common-law wife Micki and a friend, Martin Miller. Prosecutors said they told Scott during his appearance before the grand jury that he was a key suspect.

Despite grants of immunity given to Mrs. Scott, who was identified as a "possible target" by the prosecutors, and Miller, both refused to testify. They face contempt proceedings that could lead to jail sentences of 16 months.

William Kunstler, Scott's attorney, said the government wants to put Mrs. Scott and Miller into prison in an attempt to force Scott's cooperation in the search for Miss Hearst.

"Jack Scott will undoubtedly be indicted by this grand jury unless a miracle intervenes," Kunstler said. "They want to put his wife and his best friend in jail. Think of the stress this man will be under."

Investigators suspect the Scotts rented the South Canaan, Pa., farmhouse where Miss Hearst and three other fugitive members of the Symbionese Liberation Army allegedly stayed last summer.

U.S. Attorneys Brandon Alvey and S. John Cottone repeatedly refused to discuss the government's plans to file contempt charges against Mrs. Scott and Miller.

Both the Scotts and Miller cited the Fifth Amendment in refusing to testify before the grand jury. The Scotts also read the same statement in their separate appearances, which said:

"I refuse to answer because I will never be placed in a position where I can become an accomplice to further murderous conduct on the part of the government such as was exhibited in Los Angeles, California, on May 17, 1974 when six people were murdered and the lives of countless others were seriously jeopardized."

The six SLA members were killed in a shootout with police.

Nine Witnesses Face Hoffa Panel

DETROIT (UPI) — Nine more witnesses appeared before a federal grand jury on the third day of its investigation into the disappearance of former Teamsters boss James Hoffa. Federal sources said two of them did not cooperate.

The sources said Joseph Bane Sr., an official of Teamsters Local 614, and Bane's son refused to answer any questions when they appeared Thursday.

Bane and his son, also an official of Local 614, each spent about three minutes before the grand jury.

Another federal grand jury is investigating the local's financial affairs but federal sources did not say if this was a reason for the refusal to cooperate.

The two men were summoned before the panel because they are acquaintances of Hoffa — who headed the International Teamsters union for 13 years — and because Local 614 is located in Pontiac, not far from Hoffa's suburban home and only a few miles from where Hoffa vanished July 30.

Another witness was Leonard Schultz, a Detroit labor consultant, who spent more than two hours before the grand jury. At one time, he was identified as one of three men Hoffa planned to meet the day he disappeared.

Schultz did not say what he told the grand jury. He said he "did everything" he could to cooperate — in contrast to an earlier threat to refuse to answer any questions.

The grand jury is seeking information — but not indictments — in an attempt to determine how and why Hoffa disappeared.

The 62-year-old union leader was last seen standing outside a suburban Detroit restaurant where, he told his family, he had an appointment with reputed Mafia chieftain Anthony Giacalone.

Chicago Teachers Still Out; New York Schools Threatened

By United Press International

Classrooms were closed to some 530,000 Chicago public school students today and teachers marched picket lines for the third straight day. School board negotiators studied the union's latest contract proposal.

New York City teachers staged a traffic-snarling demonstration to show they intend to shut down schools for 1.1 million students next week if their contract demands are not met.

Of the nation's three largest cities, only Los Angeles was spared strike woes. Teachers there reached a tentative agreement Thursday night, averting the threat of a strike when schools open next week.

In all, teachers strikes affected 955,800 students in 11 states today.

Negotiations continued between the school board and the Chicago Teachers' Union today. Union president Robert Healey said 97.8 percent of the 27,188 teachers honored picket lines Thursday.

Negotiations recessed Thursday night to give board negotiators time to review the union's latest proposal. The board was to respond when talks resumed later today.

Healey said the two sides were still "very far apart" on contract issues. But Schools Supt. Joseph Hannon said negotiators were "not very far apart." Hannon lambasted the union for using negotiations to show the union — not the school board or administrators — is running the school system.

Teachers were off their jobs for a second day in Elgin, a suburb of Chicago. School officials ordered schools closed today. Efforts to keep classes open for the district's 26,000 students Thursday failed and many students were sent many home before noon.

At Urbana, Ill., teachers have been on strike for two weeks, although substitute teachers kept two elementary schools open for the 6,200 pupils. The city prepared for a tax referendum seeking a 32 percent property tax hike to cover teachers' salary increases and other educational needs.

In New York City, teachers already were on strike at five Roman Catholic high schools, with 8,000 students. The teachers said they want 10 percent cost-of-living salary increases. The schools said they can afford no raises this year.

The city's 80,000 public school teachers said they were prepared to shut down the school system in their contract dispute, which is centered on working conditions. The board of education, reflecting New York's financial crisis, has asked the teachers to work longer hours, reduce the amount of time they have allotted for preparing classroom work and give up sabbatical leaves.

About 20,000 teachers crossed the Brooklyn Bridge during the afternoon rush hour Thursday on a march from the Board of Education to City Hall.

Strikes also plagued in Schenectady, N.Y., and a suburb, although classes were kept open for 20,000 students, and the South Colonie School District near Albany, with 6,300 students. Teachers in two Long Island school districts also were out, affecting 13,800 students.

A rash of strikes continued in Pennsylvania, where 150,000 students got extended vacations as teachers walked out or were locked out over contract disputes in 31 districts.

Strikes in 12 cities in Rhode Island continued to delay the opening of classes of 80,000 students. Dissident teachers in Berkeley, Calif., and a San Jose, Calif., area district remained on the picket lines, affecting 24,000 students.

Lynn, Mass., teachers went on strike Thursday, closing schools for 15,000 students, and nine other Massachusetts school districts faced strike threats.

In Michigan, the end of strikes in Livonia and East Detroit reopen classes for 43,300 students. But school days were still delayed for 31,000 children in Taylor and Lakeshore.

Wilmington, Del., teachers faced possible court action for defying a court back-to-work order and continuing their strike. The Wilmington Federation of Teachers was to appear in court today to answer contempt charges for continuing a strike that affects 14,200 children.

Classrooms in Great Falls, Mont., were about half empty Thursday. A teachers' strike there was in its second week and attendance has been light in the 16,800-student school district.

Louisville Demonstration

A demonstrator lays bloody on the ground as members of the Louisville police break up a anti-busing rally in a downtown shopping mall during the first day of court ordered busing. (UPI)

Busing Plan in Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Officials called the opening day of the nation's largest new desegregation busing program an overall success, despite three violent flareups, 13 arrests and a student absentee rate of more than 50 percent.

Four policemen and several demonstrators sustained minor injuries in the outbreaks. "Except for a few incidents, we can take pride in what happened today," said Louisville Mayor Harvey Sloane.

The busing plan, which went into effect Thursday, involves 22,600 students in the 130,000-pupil Jefferson County-Louisville school system. The city and suburban school systems recently were merged for the desegregation plan.

There were no immediate figures on the number of students actually bused. Officials earlier said they expected some parents would choose to drive their children to school.

School Supt. Ernest Grayson said an estimated 56 percent absenteeism rate could be attributed as much to parental apprehension about the first day of busing as to any organized boycott.

He said he expected that figure to improve as parents saw how smoothly the program went Thursday.

Attendance ranged from 30 percent at suburban Fairdale high school to 85 percent at Ballard high school, in a wealthy suburban area.

Sue Connor, who heads the largest antibusing group, said "the empty buses" were a result of a boycott campaign.

"We're on the verge of taking this country back to democracy," said Mrs. Connor, president of Concerned Parents Inc.

The confrontations occurred downtown and outside Fairdale as black students were being bused home at the end of classes.

Police said some 150 demonstrators left an area set aside for protest activity and tried to block buses taking black students home from school. Yelling obscenities at the riders, the demonstrators threw rocks and other objects at the buses but no one was injured.

Jefferson County police dispersed the throng and arrested an 18-year-old youth and two juveniles. One of the juveniles

Plant Reopening

Another piece of good news on the local economic scene was reported yesterday. The shut-down Siller Beef Co. has been sold to a group of investors, both from New York City and locally, and is expected to resume operations by the middle of the month. This development, coupled with earlier news that the unemployment rate for Ulster County dipped two-tenths of a percent for the month of July, hopefully augurs well for the area's economic future.

The new meat firm will be named Hudson Valley Quality Meats, Inc. and on a happy note, Louis M. Siller has been named honorary chairman of the board. A spokesman for the new company was quick to point out that complete cooperation by unions such as the Teamsters, Amalgamated Meat Cutters and the Food Employees Union in shaping a new contract helped facilitate the speedy reopening of the plant.

Since the mid-April shutdown, Siller's quality products and unique service have been missed. The company had serviced a large area stretching from Northern New Jersey to Vermont. Its customers will be delighted to see it back in operation. Happy, too, are the 86 workers scheduled initially to be hired, plus those who will be taken on later as the company expands.

Eager for Aid

Even the most insensitive of statesmen could recognize the invitation that North and South Vietnam are issuing to the United States of America. The Communists have taken great pains in recent months to let the United States know they are eager to implement Chapter 8 of the agreement which ended our role in the Indochina war—the provision which says the United States will contribute to the post-war reconstruction of both Vietnams if other promises are kept.

As early as last June Premier Pham Van Dong himself took the initiative, with an announcement that North Vietnam was "ready to pursue a resumption in relations with the United States" provided we gave them aid. North Vietnam, the premier said, in return would live up to its promise of 1973 to furnish a prompt accounting of the Americans missing in action in Indochina.

Once stung, twice shy. When the United States reacted coolly, North and South Vietnam took a number of other steps to exhibit their eagerness to do business with us. Among other things, Shell Oil Company was approached to see if it is interested in a resumption of exploratory drilling in the South Vietnamese tidelands. Dr. Roger Shields, who is in charge of repatriation of prisoners of war at the Pentagon, received a message from Hanoi that North Vietnam was ready to ship the remains of three more American servicemen. And finally, this month Nguyen Van Luu and Dinh Ba Thi, observers at the United Nations for North and South Vietnam, again declared that their countries were ready to resume "normal relations" with the United States if we extended aid.

The eagerness of the Communists, North and South Vietnam, to tap American capital and technology for the reconstruction of Southeast Asia is hardly surprising. Both Russia and China are having their own reconstruction problems and would be delighted to have us relieve them of the financial burdens of such backward client states as the Vietnams and Cuba. For the Kremlin this would constitute a brilliant execution of policy along the classic lines dictated by Stalin, who said that capitalist countries would furnish the rope to hang themselves.

The U.S. official policy on aid to North and South Vietnam is honest and straightforward. Private U.S. firms and organizations would violate provisions of the Trading With the Enemy Act if they tried to assist North Vietnam with technology or reconstruction. The attitude of the State Department itself is particularly charitable. In a speech to the Japan Society of New York, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said that although the Communists have flouted accepted standards of conduct, "we are prepared to look to the future. Our attitude toward them will be influenced by their conduct toward their neighbors and their attitude toward us."

Nothing in their attitude to date suggests that the Communists have the faintest intention to live up to the binding agreement that they signed to end the war in Indochina, to account for all Americans missing in action, or to permit international assurances that self-determination must dictate the future of Indochina.

Like so many other nations in history, and particularly in recent guerrilla warfare history, the Communists of Vietnam are learning that winning a war is one thing. Building a viable nation is quite another.

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON—Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., in one of the most audacious acts since David challenged Goliath, will attempt to break up the economic power of the big oil companies.

He is preparing for a bruising battle. A private memo, intended for his eyes only, warns that "the oil industry is beginning to mobilize" and that he "can expect fierce opposition."

But Bayh believes the only way to bring competition back to the domestic oil industry is to strip the big companies of their control over all stages of production from the oil well to the gas pump.

He has drafted legislation which would prohibit the majors from engaging in more than one of the four segments of the industry—production, transportation, refining and marketing.

Here's how Bayh's bill would work, according to a confidential analysis:

"In the case of the big eight—Exxon, Shell, Texaco, Amoco, Socal, Mobil, Gulf and ARCO—which have major interests in all four segments of the industry, each company would have to decide which area it wanted to remain in and divest itself of all interest in the other three areas."

The analysis, prepared by staff aide Howard Paster, contends that the oil industry is "essentially non-competitive." The major companies control oil fields, transmission lines, tankers, refineries and service stations.

In other words, as Paster puts it in his memo, they "control the oil from the time it comes out of the ground until it is pumped into the gasoline tank." Reduced to statistics, "the 20 largest oil companies control more than 75 per cent of production, refining and marketing and more than 90 percent of pipeline capacity."

This gives the oil giants the power to manipulate prices. The Senate memo cites "the infamous July 4th gasoline price increases" as an example.

Although the increases were strictly legal, "the oil companies were able to prevent competition from holding the increases in check by limiting refinery operations during May and June and thus creating a supply-demand imbalance for gasoline immediately prior to the peak driving season," the memo charges.

"If the same companies did not control the flow of crude," the memo contends, "the refinery operations and the retailing of gasoline by such . . . a highly anti-competitive maneuver would not have been possible."

The memo also cites "the refusal of the major oil companies to sell lower-priced domestic crude to independent refineries until forced to do so" by the Federal Energy Administration.

"By trying to limit the independent refineries to higher-priced domestic and foreign crude," asserts the memo, "the majors sought to use their market control to destroy competition."

The ultimate victim of the oil companies' collusion, of course, are the customers who have been pouring more and more of their earnings into the pockets of the oil men.

Bayh believes he has a good chance of pushing his bill through the Senate. The oil barons are also beginning to get a little worried. "The industry originally did not get excited; however, that is changing," the memo advised.

But it warned: "We can expect fierce opposition, not only in the hearings but also in the media . . . and through the shareholders."

"One uncertainty," adds the memo, "is the extent of the inevitable Administration support for the industry." Bayh responded to this statement by scribbling in the margin: "We can't win this one on the Hill alone."

But as the consumers dig deeper into their pockets to pay gasoline prices and heating costs, they may raise a howl that will be heard on Capitol Hill. Then the Bayh bill may have a real chance.

COCAINE CRACKDOWN: A major crackdown on international narcotics is expected in Bolivia, the source of much of the illegal cocaine that reaches the United States.

With the vigorous encouragement of American authorities, Bolivian dictator Hugo Banzer is getting serious about stopping the dope trade.

In July, Bolivian drug enforcement officers met in Cochabamba with their counterparts from Peru, Chile, Argentina, Paraguay, and Brazil to map out a multinational anti-drug campaign.

Last year, Banzer fired the police chief of Santa Cruz, who was believed to be involved in narcotics trafficking. And this past June, he purged a host of other officers from that city's police force.

From Washington, the Drug Enforcement Administration has sent agents to La Paz to train and assist Bolivian officials. American authorities are also pondering the possibility of helping Bolivian farmers develop "alternative crops" to the coca leaves they now cultivate. Cocaine, of course, is derived from coca.

Ironically, the U.S. pressure on Bolivia to stop the illicit cocaine trade will result inevitably in the imprisonment of American citizens. For American kids in search of drugs are swarming over Bolivia, where the minimum penalty for any narcotic-related offense is 10 years in the jug.

Eighteen young U.S. citizens are already rotting in the wretched jails of La Paz. Their ranks will swell, our sources predict, when the crackdown comes.

Inside Report

Threat of Portuguese Civil War

LISBON—The staggering, humiliating defeats that have put the Communist party in a remorseless political squeeze portend a climactic new stage in the Portuguese revolution, restoring a measure of Western influence and ending, at least for a time, the politics of near-anarchy.

Well-informed Soviet bloc Communists here say privately it is "an unhappy fact" that the Portuguese Communist party, by far the most disciplined and best organized force in this stolid land of nine million, has "stupidly" damaged itself by moving too fast in its reach for total power.

The result: the extraordinary influence of the Catholic church has been unleashed in full fury against the Portuguese Communist party (CPC); youthful military revolutionaries, fired with emotional zeal to impose new forms of some vague, undefined political system following a half century of fascist dictatorship, are suddenly frightened by the spectre of full-blown Communism, and numerically dominant socialists, though fragmented by ideological conflicts, have taken a new offensive.

The abrupt halt of the CPC's steady climb toward total power in Western Europe's only underdeveloped country (and a member of NATO) may prove temporary. Nothing is certain here except uncertainty. But as of today, it is surely not illusory.

The well-publicized, systematic trashings of CPC headquarters in the moderate-conservative northern regions are no longer a phenomenon. The Communist-dominated press long since gave up any attempt to conceal these nightly assaults by inflamed, anti-Communist mobs (and in fact has futilely tried to stimulate a backlash).

In the heavily Communist city of Evora 100 miles east of here the CPC attempted a tactically brilliant maneuver in which hundreds of Communist-allied peasants were secretly trucked into town and concealed until an anti-Communist socialist rally ended.

As the outnumbered socialists were breaking up their rally in a narrow, twisting street half a block from the CPC headquarters, the pro-Communist forces suddenly appeared marching against them, banners flying and chanting, "Fascists...reactionaries."

Here was planned a bloody piece of revenge for the anti-CPC trashings up north. A dangerous confrontation, in which the socialists would have been overwhelmed, was avoided only by the sudden appearance of the army's security forces in troop carriers with mounted machine guns. These security forces, so conspicuously unable or unwilling to protect CPC offices in the north, threw a protective cordon around the socialists. The night passed without a shot fired, and the Communist marchers were unable to spring their clever trap.

The incident at Evora was symbolic of the decline of CPC influence over the powerful and dominant Armed Forces Movement (AFM), which has been the CPC's passport to power ("Kiss the fanny of the AFM, that's the Communists' strategy to take over," one Western diplomat told us).

The CPC revenge in Evora Probably would have succeeded had it not been for the momentous split in the Armed Forces Council, a split engineered by former foreign minister Ernesto Nelo Antunes. One of the shrewdest of the youthful military officers—and a key factor in the April 1974 overthrow of the fascist regime—Antunes issued a powerful manifesto against an East European-style "socialist society" for Portugal.

Antunes and eight other members of the 30-member council were expelled for signing the manifesto. But since then the anti-CPC manifesto has become the hottest political development in revolutionary Portugal, endorsed by 80 to 90 percent of all local military councils and two of the four top-level regional commanders.

The growing anti-CPC militancy of the Catholic church must be added to this heavy setback for the CPC and its political godfather, prime minister Vasco Goncalves. Priests tell their communicants: don't let the Communists steal your vote (a reference to the huge anti-Communist vote in last spring's constituent assembly election), your freedom or your schools.

As for the socialists, both Socialist Party leader Mario Soares and the moderate Popular Democrats have boycotted the newest provisional government (the fifth since the revolution).

In prospect, then, is a precipitous decline of CPC control of the revolution, with Antunes and Soares probable leaders in the next phase. Either that, or this tortured country will inexorably slip into bloody civil war.

HVP Headed for Carnegie Hall

For the second time in a year, the Hudson Valley Philharmonic will appear at Carnegie Hall in New York City.

On Sept. 11 and 13 at 8 p.m., the orchestra will perform with the Erick Hawkins Dance Co. in a program entitled "An Evening of American Music and Dance."

The innovative program called "symphonic choreography" by Erick Hawkins, is a collaborative effort between orchestra and dance company, where the orchestra of 60 musicians performs onstage, instead of in the pit, and is an integral part of the dance work. The sets, which are skeletal sculptures, leave the musicians always visible and the conductor prominent. All the dances, choreographed by Mr. Hawkins, will employ the music of American composers: "Classic Kite Tails" will be danced to David Diamond's "Rounds for String Orchestra"; "Meditation on Orpheus" to Alan Hovhannes' score of the same name, and "Hurrah" to Virgil Thompson's Symphony No. 2 in C. The last two dance works are New York premieres, and "Death is a Hunter" is a world premiere. The orchestra will be conducted by Joel Thome, assistant conductor of the American Symphony and Conductor of the Forum Orchestra in Philadelphia.

The Rick Hawkins Dance Company has performed the program of symphonic dance works with the Cleveland Orchestra and the National Symphony and will open the San Francisco Orchestra's season in December under the direction of Seiji Ozawa. It is a distinct honor to the Hudson Valley Philharmonic that has been asked to premiere the program in New York.

The Erick Hawkins Dance Company is the only major modern dance company in the world that performs only with live, non electronic music. It has never performed to a tape or recording. In its early years accompaniment was with piano or percussion instruments, and later works were scored for a small chamber orchestra. Help from the National Endowment for the Arts made the creation of works with symphony orchestra possible, and the Carnegie Hall program is the results.

Tickets are available through the Carnegie Hall Box Office or the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Box Office. Bus transportation to Carnegie Hall will be available.

Sweet Adelines Guest Night

What with the Women's Lib movement and equality between the sexes, Colonial City Chapter, Sweet Adelines Inc., is offering an opportunity to area women to even the score with their mates as far as nights out, interests and entertainment are concerned. A special Guest Night to acquaint interested women with the group's activities will be held Tuesday, Sept. 9 at 8 p.m. at St. James United Methodist Church in Kingston.

Husbands have fraternal clubs, hunting and fishing interest, a night out with the boys. Now, Colonial City Chapter invites their wives to become interested in an outside-the-home activity, membership in Sweet Adelines.

It is not necessary to read music or to be professional. Tunes that have been popular through the years are sung in four-part harmony. Lower voices handle the bass notes, tenors sing the high harmonies, the lead sings the melody, and the baritones sing somewhere in between. There are no soloists, just a happy blend of voices.

For those interested in acting or directing, the group produces a show once a year, complete with acting and lots of singing. Members make costumes, use plenty of stage make-up, and offer audiences an evening of harmony.

Each year at the regional competition, barbershop groups are scored on their abilities. The competition offers members a chance to hear hundreds of other barbershop singers entertain.

Those interested in a few hours of fun while adding to the enjoyment of others, and who would like to be part of a popular group that adds prestige to the community are urged to attend Tuesday's Guest Night.

SHS Class of 1965 Has 10-Year Reunion

Saugerties High School, class of 1965, held its 10-year reunion one recent weekend at Flamingo Restaurant, Saugerties.

Class members met on Friday evening for an informal pre-reunion get-together. On Saturday a banquet took place, along with a cocktail hour, entertainment, singing and dancing. The banquet room was decorated with the school colors of blue and white. A collage of pictures from the SAWYER yearbook, newspaper clippings, and personal snapshots, was a popular attraction. A class directory, containing a summary of activities and current addresses of former schoolmates, was given to each class member. Trophies awarded during 1961-65 and the school banner were also displayed.

The reunion festivities attracted class members from California, New Mexico, Arizona, Kentucky, Alabama, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, as well as New York. Invited as special guests were several of the class' former teachers and their guests: Mrs. Maran Heermance, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kramer, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Rodden, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Seither, and Miss Agnes Sheff.

On Sunday, a class reunion family picnic took place at Cantine Field, a relaxing finale to a memorable weekend.

Members of the reunion committee included: general chairperson, reservations and class directory, Carolyn Mooney Tonsing; banquet, Richie Greco; program and entertainment, Bonnie McCaig, Dave Thornton, Cynthia Amato Wadnola, Paula Barca Mannhaupt, Lois Conte Ingellis, Theresa Porto Smith, and Lynn Tynan VanKleeck; favors and decorations, Gail Pritchard Reed, Sheila Hill Haslam; picnic, Art and Janet Hudak Sperl; other committee members, Gail Bauer Filak, Elaine Benson Ferraro, Jim Bishop, Albert Carr, Rochelle Haslam DeBrosky, Georgette Hughes, Art Isabella, Neil Jacobsen, Eli Shapiro and Werner Wirths.

KAREN SEDORE

Area Teenager Filming 16th TV Commercial

Karen Sedore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sedore of Laffin Lane, Spackenkill, Town of Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County, is filming her 16th television commercial.

Karen, who will be a freshman at Spackenkill High School this fall, is presently doing the TV stint for Stove Top Stuffing.

The 14-year-old Dutchess County resident, under the personal management of Estelle & Alfonso and a member of the Screen Actors Guild, has had a full career already including an ABC After-School Special entitled "Adam Rush" in which she had the leading role of Elizabeth, Adam's girlfriend.

Most of her filming has been done in New York City, but for Zayre's Department Store she and her mother were flown to the Carolinas for filming.

She also has been seen in television commercials for Glissad Fabric Finish (tap dancing), Kodak (ballet), Bronx Zoo, Howard Johnsons, Minute Rice, Gerbers Ketchup, Sony, Post Alphabet, Post Raisin Bran, Penn Mutual, Carol's Roast Beef Hero, Parker Bros. Miss America Game, Parker Bros. Sea Divers and Hardee's Big Twin Hamburger.

Karen, a student at Estelle & Alfonso where she studies ballet, pointe, jazz, tap, gymnastics, voice and dramatics, is a member of the Mid-Hudson Ballet Training Company and the Performers' Club and has appeared with the latter all over the county for local, civic and charity groups; at the Dutchess County Fair and at the New York Hilton Hotel.

In 1971, she won first place at the New York State Fair doing pantomime. Last June she played the part of Jessie Oakley in Estelle & Alfonso's production of "Annie Get Your Gun."

Woman Running Hotel For Uninvited Guests

By Abigail Van Buren
1975 by Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Help! I am suffering from acute and chronic "Houseguestitis." Tomorrow morning I will place an ad in our local newspaper to sell my lovely guest-room furniture. It's only one year old, looks like new, but I have aged a lot since installing it.

I've had wave after wave of houseguests for the past seven weeks—all either uninvited or self-invited—and the end isn't in sight.

My nerves are shot, my cuticles are bleeding, my purse and gas tank are empty, my yard, house, children and pets are somewhat neglected, and I'm exhausted.

One more call from friends asking me to please pick them up at the airport (85 miles round trip) will send me to the funny farm.

Most of my friends in this area have the same problem. Our husbands escape to their offices and try to ignore the mess.

I wish that people could understand that a casual, "We'd like to see you if you visit in this area," is not an invitation to move in with us.

So, tomorrow, the furniture goes on sale and the hotel closes.

ALWAYS A HOSTESS, NEVER A GUEST

DEAR ALWAYS: Why give up your guest facilities? All you have to do is say, "I'm sorry, but we can't accommodate guests now," when unwanted guests invite themselves.

DEAR ABBY: Is there a polite way to tell people that you don't want their old hand-me-down clothes?

I am three months pregnant, and no sooner did I announce it, at the office when almost every old lady present volunteered to lend me her old maternity clothes!

Abby, some of those clothes are five and six years old! Also, don't they realize that maybe I would like the pleasure of selecting the styles and colors that look best on me?

Please print this as I know there are other young pregnant girls who have been stuck in this situation.

NO HANDME-DOWNS
DEAR NO: All you need do is say, "No, thank you," when you're offered something you don't want. Some pregnant girls appreciate hand-me-downs.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is undoubtedly shared by many other senior citizens. I have arthritis in my hands, and many of my friends insist on shaking hands with me every time we meet. These thoughtless handshakers grab my hand and squeeze my poor aching fingers, which is very painful.

How can I avoid this painful experience? Maybe if you print this letter it will help.

SORE IN OKMULGEE, OKLA.

DEAR SORE: Here's your letter. In the meantime, before shaking hands, say, "Gently, please. I have arthritis."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20) envelope.

It's working

Thanks to you

Tree Removal

KINGSTON
The city of Kingston opened bids this week on the removal of 57 trees next fall with A. Michael Schovel of Saugerties the apparent low bidder at $2,855.

Schovel was apparently lower than even the Board of Public Works had figured. A spokesman for the board explained that the reason the city went to bid this year—tree removal had been farmed out on an individual job basis before—was "because the tree program had grown to such a size that it had exceeded the $3,500 bid minimum figure." The state requires that any jobs in excess of $3,500 be put out to public bid.

Bids ranged from Schovel's $2,855 to $3,890 by Dependable Tree Service of Hurley to a high of $7,007 from Davey Tree Expert Co. of Latham. The only Kingston firm bidding was David Hughes, doing business as Expert Tree Service, Inc., at $4,765.

The board awarded contracts at its regular meeting following the Wednesday afternoon bid opening. Work will begin in late October or early November.

False Report Arrest in City 'Robbery'

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON
What was initially reported to be an armed robbery at the Garden of Eden on Abeel Street early Thursday has turned out to be nothing of the sort, city police now say.

On Thursday afternoon Kingston detectives arrested the bartender who allegedly reported the robbery, Ronnie Wade, 18, of 169 Abeel Street, on a charge of making an apparent false sworn statement in the first degree.

Detectives erroneously reported Thursday morning that they had arrested Cornelius Royal, 22, of Belle Glade, Fla., a migrant worker currently staying at the Jack Gill migrant camp in the Town of Marlinton on a charge of first degree robbery in connection with the case. Police did question Royal, but he was not arrested, and, according to Deputy Chief William Slover, Royal was not in the vicinity of the Garden at the time of the reported robbery.

Slover said today that allegedly no robbery, in fact, occurred.

Initial reports Thursday were that two black men, both armed with handguns, entered the night spot at about 3:30 a.m. and demanded money from the bartender, Wade. They were said to have made off with $30 and fled in a car which was later recovered.

According to detectives, the description of the getaway car provided by Wade matched a car owned by Royal, and, in fact, Royal had been in the Garden of Eden earlier in the night prior to the apparently fabricated robbery.

Meanwhile, in other area police matters: State police BCI investigators reported the arrest

Thursday of Norman Brauner, 21, of 198 Lucas Avenue Extension, High Falls on a charge of grand larceny in connection with the alleged issuance of more than $2,000 in bad checks. Brauner, self-employed as a salesman, was jailed in lieu of $5,250 bail following arraignment.

In the Town of Saugerties, a young High Woods man was charged with leaving the scene of an accident and with driving while his license was revoked after turning himself in to town police early today.

Frederick Russell, 21, was charged in connection with a two-car crash shortly before 1 a.m. today on Glasco Turnpike, which resulted in the hospitalization of a woman.

Police said Robert Scherman, 47, of Route 212, Saugerties, was driving east on Glasco Turnpike when an unknown vehicle collided with the left front of his car and fled the scene. Scherman's wife, Grace, 63, was taken from the scene by Saugerties Ambulance to Benedictine Hospital where she was listed in fair condition today suffering from head injuries.

Police were seeking the second vehicle and driver when Russell turned himself in several hours after the crash.

A leak of sodium aluminate from a drum in a tractor-trailer parked at the Malden Rest Area on the Thruway Thursday night kept Malden-West Camp firemen out for about three hours. Initial concerns about possible dangers of explosion from the substance proved unfounded after a check with officials, and the offending drum was removed from the truck, which contained on its way to Albany.

Even Bucky Harris Was Amazed at Flim-Flam Play

By NEIL HERSHBERG
UPI Sports Writer

After 50 years in baseball, one might expect that Bucky Harris, baseball's "boy wonder" and one of the five newest members to the Hall of Fame, has seen it all.

But even Harris, 78 years old and ailing, was amazed at the flim-flam play Thursday night that helped the Boston Red Sox down the Baltimore Orioles 3-1 for a sweep of the crucial two game series. The Red Sox' victory increased their lead to eight games in the American League East with 23 left.

Harris, who was named player-manager of the old Washington Senators in 1924 at the age of 27, was in the Baltimore pressbox to witness the final game of the season in Baltimore between the two clubs.

The teams were a study of contrasts, Baltimore—a veteran club, the winner of the AL East five of the past six seasons, unnerved by the pressures of a pennant race. Boston—a rookie-laden club, a bit tight, finished third last season after folding in the stretch. But this year Boston had promised it would be different. Based on Thursday night's outcome, the Red Sox appear to have made good on their promise.

Boston went right to work in the first inning. Cecil Cooper led off with a single and one out later, Carl Yastrzemski doubled him to third. Fred Lynn walked to load the bases and set the stage for one of baseball's most unusual plays in years.

Jim Rice hit a one-hopper to veteran third baseman Brooks Robinson, who stepped on third to force Yastrzemski. Robinson's throw to first on the attempted double play eluded Lee May allowing Cooper to score. Lynn continued to third with Yastrzemski, who was already out, trotting down the third base line toward the Boston dugout. May, meanwhile, picked up the ball and saw Yastrzemski coming down the line toward home. May's throw got by catcher Dave Duncan, allowing Lynn, who continued running on the play, to score the second run of the inning.

The final Boston run was also unearned as Carlton Fisk tripled and scored on Mike Torrez' wild pitch.

"I never saw anything like it in 50 years of baseball," Harris said. Harris, who suffers from Parkinson's disease, was unable to attend the Hall of Fame ceremonies because of the stress involved. As the second youngest manager in baseball history, he piloted three of his clubs to division titles. Harris also batted .279 during his 12-year major league career.

"I thought he tagged the base but he might have missed it so I just kept running," answered a shrewdly smiling Yastrzemski to questions on why he was running from third to home.

"I've never seen it before but I'm going to remember it," said Lynn, baseball's newest superstar and generations apart from Harris. "I was rounding third and I simply kept going when I saw the ball get past May."

In other games, Kansas City blanked Chicago 7-0, New York blitzed Detroit 8-1, Cleveland ripped Milwaukee 10-5, and California edged Texas 6-4. Oakland and Minnesota did not play.

Royals 7, White Sox 0

Frank White and Jim Wohlford each drove in three runs to lead Kansas City to its fourth straight victory and sixth in its last eight games on Paul Splittorff's third shutout. The victory over Chicago left the Royals six games behind pacesetter Oakland in the AL West.

Yankees 8, Tigers 1

Thurman Munson, on his way to becoming the first Yankee in 11 years to drive in 100 runs, batted in three runs and Rudy May hurled a five-hitter to spark New York past Detroit. Munson singled home a run in the third and the second runs in the fifth off loser Ray Bare. Munson's three RBIs raised his total to 89—is best figure ever. The last Yankee with 100 RBIs in a season was Mickey Mantle with 111 in 1964.

Indians 10, Brewers 5

Joe Lis, brought back to the majors only three days ago, drove home four runs with a three-run homer and a sacrifice fly to power Cleveland over Milwaukee. Lis, recalled by the Indians Sept. 1, belted his three-run homer in the second off rookie Lafayette Currence.

Angels 6, Rangers 4

Lee Stanton cracked a basesloaded double to drive in three unearned runs in the eighth inning after smashing a two-run homer in the seventh as California beat Texas.

Oh, Those Giant Names!

By BILL MADDEN
UPI Sports Writer

The names Montefusco, Falcone and Halicki are giving Westrum good reason for dredging up that yearly credo of the old Brooklyn Dodgers: "Wait 'til next year."

At 23 games behind Cincinnati in the National League West, Westrum doesn't need a calculator to figure out his San Francisco Giants aren't going anywhere this year. But in John Montefusco, Pete Falcone and Ed Halicki, the Giant skipper can look forward to starting next season with the most impressive collection of young pitchers in baseball.

Halicki (24) hurled the National League's only no-hitter of 1975 two weeks ago, while Falcone (22) ran his record to 11-9 Wednesday night. And Thursday night, Montefusco (25) pitched the Giants over the .500 mark (70-69) to run his rookie 1975 record to 13-9.

"I've never been on a team that had this many good young arms all coming at the same time," said Westrum after Montefusco and reliever Randy Moffitt combined to stop the Houston Astros 2-1 on four hits. "If they make their normal progress, they should make us pennant contenders next year."

Westrum, who also listed 23-year-old John D'Aquisto, out with an elbow injury this season after being named top right-handed rookie pitcher in the NL last season, as part of his front four for next year, likened his youngsters to the Baltimore Orioles' "Baby Birds" staff in the late 1950s.

"The Orioles had those kids like Steve Barber, Chuck Estrada, Jack Fisher and Milt Pappas," Westrum recalled. "But we've got some other good young arms here too. Gary Lavelle (26) has helped tremendously in the bullpen and Dave Heaverlo (25) has to be considered for the starting rotation next year. And we've still got Bob Knepper (21), who had a great season at Phoenix this year and was 20-5 at Fresno a year ago."

Montefusco, who gave way to Moffitt when the Astros scored with two out in the ninth, got his run support from Gary Matthews, who dashed home from third on Steve Ontiveros' short outfield fly in the seventh, and Derrel Thomas, who tripled and scored on Bobby Murcer's single in the eighth.

There were only two other games in the National League Thursday. Los Angeles shaded Cincinnati 3-2 and Atlanta nipped San Diego 2-1. In the American League, Boston put away Baltimore 3-1, Cleveland drubbed Milwaukee 10-5, Kansas City blanked Chicago 7-0, New York downed Detroit 8-1 and California overtook Texas 6-4 in the only games scheduled.

Dodgers 3, Reds 2

Willie Crawford homered with Lee Lacy aboard to cap a three-run first inning as Los Angeles, behind Doug Rau's four-hitter, stalled Cincinnati's NL West clinching number at five. Crawford's eighth homer came after Lee Lacy singled home Davey Lopes with the first Dodger run. George Foster hit a solo homer for the Reds.

Braves 2, Padres 1

Marty Perez singled home Mike Lum with the winning run after Atlanta staged a two-run rally in the ninth inning to beat San Diego. Perez' game-winning hit off reliever Danny Frisella came after Rod Gilbreath opened the ninth with a single, was sacrificed to second and scored on Ed Goodson's single after a walk to Lum. A crowd of only 1,062 was on hand—the lowest ever to witness a major league game in Atlanta.

Even Nice Nastase Can't Win

Official shrugs as Romania's Ilie Nastase disputes a call at Forest Hills Thursday during U.S. Open quarterfinal match against Spain's Manuel Orantes. Nastase kept his temper under remarkable control despite losing to Orantes, 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3. (UPI)

Chris Faces Her Biggest Challenge

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Chris Evert faces one of the biggest challenges of her 20 years today.

She is in the semifinals of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships, where, ever since she was a wide-eyed, pony-tailed 16-year-old, she has been beaten.

But today, when she walks onto the court, a mere 18-year-old, Czechoslovakian Martina Navratilova, there seems no chance that Miss Evert will fail to reach the finals, and there have her first true opportunity to win the title she says "I want most of all."

Chris has beaten Martina seven times in nine meetings this year. Further, the chunky Czech teenager has never taken a set on clay from the devastating metronome from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

If, as expected, Chris continues her domination of the women's field here in the $309,000 tournament, which offers a paltry $25,000 in prize money for the winner—paltry because Miss Evert has already won $255,000 in 1975—she will face either Evonne Goolagong Cawley or Virginia Wade in Saturday's final.

Miss Wade, 30, won the inaugural U.S. Open in 1968 by defeating Billie Jean King. The newly married Mrs. Cawley lost to Billie Jean in last year's final in a tense three-setter. Billie declined to defend this year.

Forest Hills, strangely, is where Miss Evert made her sensational debut on the international scene. Yet is here that she has suffered her four most galling losses, all in the semis, to Kerry Melville, to Margaret Court and a year ago, in three sets, to Evonne.

But if today promised polite women's matches, Thursday's warfare among the men was different, if only because the Ilie Nastase-Manuel Orantes match ended with the yet another record crowd of 15,627 boeing in sympathy with the Romanian, when an extremely close line call in the final set went against him.

Nastase, controlling his temper physically, but offering some choice vocal objections, lost to Orantes, 6-2, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, sending the third seeded Spaniard against Guillermo Vilas in Saturday's semifinal.

Vilas, toyed with Chile's Jaime Fillol, 6-4, 6-0, 6-1 to gain the bracket. Through five matches, the second seeded Argentinian has dropped only 18 games in 12 straight sets.

After the explosive conclusion to the Nastase-Orantes match, Ilie's buddy, defending champion Jimmy Connors, had a laugh, 6-2, 6-1, 6-2 victory over Rhodesia's Andrew Pattison.

That win sent Jimmy against Bjorn Borg, the 19-year-old Swede who is regarded as heir presumptive to the 23-year-old Connors as the world's best player.

Borg played a long four-setter in downing Eddie Dibbs in the day's opening center court match. Bjorn won it, 6-4, 7-6, 4-6, 7-6, slipping by when leg cramps struck him in points in the second set tie break, then had nothing left to do in the fourth set tie break.

Lions Ready for Owls

By United Press International

Quietly and steadily Wayne Hardin has been resurrecting the football ashes at Temple University these past few years.

The Owls, benefiting from Hardin's shrewd recruiting of transfer students plus schedules nicely sprinkled with small college foes, have turned out impressive records of 9-1 and 8-2 the past two seasons and have begun to make their presence felt among the eastern powers. Last season in particular Owl quarterback Steve Joachim came within an eyelash of achieving first team All America honors.

Now, however, the time is at hand for Hardin's careful rebuilding plans to show just how far they have progressed. Gone is Joachim and added to the schedule is Penn State—long the real test of any eastern power hopeful.

Penn State and Temple will meet Saturday night at Philadelphia's Baker Field as the official Bicentennial event for the city of Brotherly Love. It is the first meeting between the two clubs since 1952.

"Wayne has done a great job at Temple," says Penn State coach Joe Paterno, who hasn't done such a bad job (85-18-1) in 10 years at the Nittany Lions' helm. "I thought when we rescheduled this series between the two teams it would not be good for us. I was wrong. Temple has done a great job of rebuilding its program and it should be a good series for both schools."

With Joachim (who incidentally was recruited by Hardin right off the Penn State squad) gone, this year's Owl squad will rest on its defense. Heading up that defensive unit which Hardin calls "the best we've had since 1970," is middle guard Joe Klecko. Klecko, a 262-pound junior is a good bet to achieve that first team All America slot that eluded Joachim last year.

As for the Nittany Lions, perennial eastern champions, Paterno is cautious in his evaluation—and that can only mean trouble for Temple. "We have a lot of young people who are going to have to play well for us," the Penn State coach says. "I can't remember having a younger team than this—especially on offense."

Paterno will start three underclassmen in his backfield—junior quarterback John Andrews, junior fullback Larry Suhey and sophomore wingback Jimmy Cefalo—and it remains to be seen whether there's any more John Cappelletti, Franco Harris or Lydell Mitchells in that bunch.

Elsewhere across the nation in college football's limited opening Saturday, Villanova is at Maryland, Mississippi is at Baylor, Drake at New Mexico State, SMU at Wake Forest, Mississippi State at Memphis State, Lamar at Houston and East Carolina at North Carolina State.

Dolphins Count on Anderson

BY JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

The Miami Dolphins apparently don't intend to write off Dick Anderson for the season.

Anderson, one of the best strongside safeties in the National Football League, suffered a knee injury in a pre-season loss to Minnesota Monday night. He underwent successful surgery in Atlanta Thursday and the Dolphins say he will be available in six to eight weeks.

Under the new roster rules this season, Miami will have to hold open a spot on its 43-man roster for Anderson if the Dolphins intend to use him again this season. The move list and taxi squad have been eliminated.

Charlie Babb, a four-year veteran, will replace Anderson, who with free safety Jake Scott formed one of the best defensive backfield tandems in the league. Scott also is having his problems, recovering slowly from a leg injury suffered in the playoffs last year and sustaining a separated shoulder last week.

In addition, middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti will be out for at least six weeks with a broken thumb suffered against Minnesota. Outside linebacker Mike Kolen will move into the middle to replace him and Bob Matheson will take Kolen's spot. Rookie Barry Hill will replace Scott.

The Dolphins also made some personnel moves Thursday, waiving six players including receivers Cotton Speyrer and Al Dodd, defensive tackle Maulty Moore and linebacker Cleveland Vann, all veterans.

Elsewhere, Oakland cut middle linebacker Dan Connors, a starter for the past decade. Connors lost his job this season to Monte Johnson. The Raiders do not announce cuts but receiver Kent Gaydos and cornerback Jimmy Warren also apparently were dropped.

Norm Snead apparently has won the starting quarterback job at San Francisco from Tom Owen and Steve Spurrier. Coach Dick Nolan said his regular season starter would play the final two pre-season games and Snead will be starting this weekend.

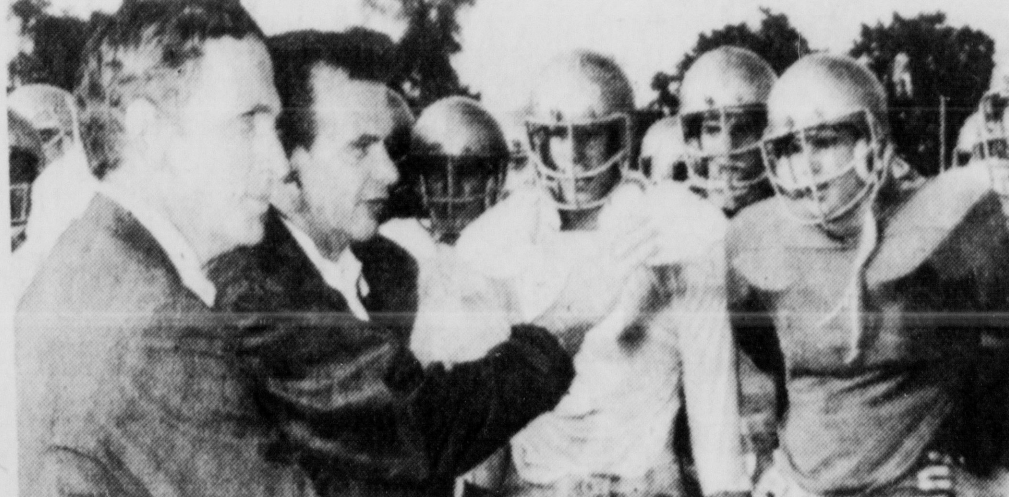

Buffalo traded veteran safety Neal Craig to Cleveland for a draft choice and put running back Roland Hooks on injured reserve and Washington sent cornerback Ted Vactor to Chicago for a draft pick. The Bears made room by dropping Randy Montgomery.

Baltimore cut defensive linemen Bill Windauer and John Bushong and the New York Giants trimmed defensive tackle George Hasenorhl. Los Angeles dealt tackle Tim Stokes to Washington for draft picks and the Rams also dropped linebacker Bob Stein and kicker Grant Guthrie, both veterans.

Washington and St. Louis also agreed on compensation for Dave Butz, the defensive tackle who played out his option with the Cardinals and signed with the Redskins. Washington will give St. Louis first round picks in 1977 and 1978 plus the second round in 1979 and the Redskins receive all with the 290-pound Butz of Cardinals' No. 5 and 15 pick next year.

New England put linebacker John Tanner on injured reserve and cut safety Donni Walker. Walker now has been traded and cut from three teams since January.

Jack Counting

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — One could hardly blame Jack Nicklaus for counting his earnings from the World Series of Golf among his annual yearly income.

After all, the Golden Bear has been in nine of the first 13 World Series and is one of the four who will compete Saturday and Sunday for the final time at the Firestone Country Club for the $50,000 first prize.

Nicklaus, who captured two of the four major events needed to get into the Series—The Masters and PGA—has pocketed $263,750 in his previous nine tries, an average of $20,288 per year, including the years he wasn't even there. He has won the event four times.

Joining Nicklaus this weekend will be U.S. Open winner Lou Graham, British Open champ Tom Watson and Tom Weiskopf, who gained entry into the Series by virtue of his win in the Canadian Open, the tournament used as the first alternate.

The four were to play a practice round today on the 7,180-yard Firestone course and then compete head-to-head in 18-hole rounds Saturday and Sunday. Action both days will be televised by NBC from 5 to 6:30 p.m.

Nicklaus' success on Firestone hasn't been limited to the WSG, however, having won the annual American Golf Classic once and this year taking his PGA title there with a four under par score of 276.

Weiskopf, who beat Nicklaus by three shots to take the WSG in his only other appearance, has also played Firestone quite well and finished only three shots behind the Golden Bear last month in the PGA.

Wood, Timbrouck Star In Basketball Openers

KINGSTON
Ted Wood and Don Timbrouck powered a pair of routs in the Kingston Senior Basketball League at the Municipal Auditorium. Wood threw in 32 points to lead Edgar's to an 84-59 win over Wack A Tack, and Timbrouck hit 40 in Convenient Food Mart's 117-52 romp over Smith's Grocery.

Edgar's led throughout the contest as Steve Peruso helped out with 24 points. Bill Samuels had 12 to pace the losers.

Corey Chambers and Duane Carey added 21 apiece to push the Food Mart's margin even higher. A.J. Murphy was high for Smith's with 18.

The scoring:
Wack A Tack (59) — Mackey 10, Anderson 16, Murphy 18, Corrado 3, Abney 3, Hazenbush 2.
Edgar's (84) — Brady 4, Peruso 24, Wood 32, Renn 8, Komosa 12, Goloski 4.

Smith's Grocery (52) — Mackey 10, Anderson 16, Murphy 18, Corrado 3, Abney 3, Hazenbush 2.

Convenient Food Mart (117) — Chambers 21, Carey 21, D. Timbrouck 40, P. Timbrouck 18, Glass 12.

Royal Flush Lassie Champs

SAUGERTIES

Royal Flush trounced Shake, Rattle and Roll, 12-3, to win the B Championship of the SAA Lassies Softball League, in the championship playoff game. Royal Flush had won the B-East Division pennant with a 9-1 record, while S,R&R paced B-West with a 7-3 mark.

Royal Flush wasted no time in asserting its superiority, racking up 11 runs in the first two innings. Alice Sharrett scattered eight hits effectively and was in trouble only in the third inning when S,R&R scored its three runs. She also sparked both Royal rallies with two-run doubles.

Jeanine Costello and Trina Van Tassel aided the Royals with single-double combinations. Laura Beaulieu hit two singles for the losers.

KSC Nips Rhinebeck

KINGSTON

Having defeated Rhinebeck 2-1 in a clutch game at St. Mary's Field, the Kingston Soccer Club is awaiting the results of Sunday's game between Rhinebeck and Peekskill at Peekskill.

If Rhinebeck can upset the league leaders it would result in a tie between Kingston and Peekskill and set up a championship playoff on Sunday, Sept. 14, at a site to be named. Johnny Robinson figured in both Kingston goals against Rhinebeck. He passed to Jim Reinhardt at the 15-minute mark and the veteran Kingston ace looped the ball over the Rhinebeck goalie's head. Robinson slammed an 18-meter into the net at the 35-minute mark after a eat pass from Sonny Ronconco.

Sandy Jacks scored for Rhinebeck on a penalty kick. Kingston dominated the first half action and held a 5-3 edge in corner kicks and 13-8 in shots-on-goal.

Crusade Slots Open

ACCORD

Response has been excellent for the 4th Annual Ulster County Golf Crusade at Rondout Golf Club, Mrs. Oscar Johnson, tournament chairman, announced. The event, sponsored by the American Cancer Society, will be held Saturday, Sept. 13.

There are still some slots available, she said, and interested golfers are urged to register as soon as possible. Registration forms are available at pro shops throughout the county or by calling Mrs. Johnson, 687-9156.

Portuguese Army Boycotts Meeting

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Defiant army officers today voted to boycott a crucial meeting of the nation's military leaders, postponing talks dealing with the fate of pro-Communist armed forces chief Vasco Gonçalves.

The army delegates to the Armed Forces Movement general assembly demanded the immediate ouster of Gonçalves as their price for attendance, military sources said.

A military spokesman said the officers voted early today to boycott the meeting. He said army commander Gen. Carlos Fabiao had begun meeting with them at Tancos paratroop base in an effort to get them to change their minds.

The assembly was scheduled to have opened at 10:30 a.m. (5:30 a.m. EDT), but was postponed until 3 p.m. (10 a.m. EDT) because of the army officers' decision.

The officers were angered because of a decision of President Francisco da Costa Gomes Thursday to temporarily keep Gonçalves on as both prime minister and armed forces chief until the newly appointed prime minister, Adm. Jbse Pinheiro Azevedo, forms a new cabinet.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale duly made and entered in the above entitled action, and bearing date the 15th day of August, 1975, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the County Courthouse at Wall Street, Kingston, New York, on September 22, 1975, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon on that day, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described being as follows:

PARCEL 1
ALL THAT PIECE OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate in the Town of Saugerties, Ulster County, New York, and near a place called Goldrick's Landing and more particularly described as follows:

BEGINNING at an iron bar on the southern line of lands of Masterplanned, Incorporated, formerly the Rose Brothers Brick Company and the northerly line of lands of the Concord-Norfolk Corp.

(1) Said iron bar being South 58° 05' East 1052.43 feet from the easterly side of County Highway #99; (2) and running thence along the line of Masterplanned, Incorporated South 58° 05' East 307.57 feet to a point on the westerly high water mark of the Hudson River; (3) thence down and along the westerly high water mark in a southerly direction 550.00 feet more or less to a point at the northerly end of a dock;

(4) thence along the easterly face of said dock South 29° 33' West 767.00 feet to a point on the northerly line of the lands of Concord-Norfolk Corp.

(5) thence along said line North 61° 49' West 160.00 feet to a point; (6) thence North 45° 21' West 128.62 feet to an iron bar; (7) thence running North 37° 27' East 268.22 feet to an iron bar; (8) thence North 0° 50' East 82.35 feet to an iron bar; (9) thence North 70° 17' East 211.37 feet to an iron bar; (10) thence North 20° 57' East 270.35 feet to an iron bar; (11) thence North 57° 14' East 68.89 feet to an iron bar; (12) thence North 37° 25' East 104.11 feet to an iron bar; (13) thence North 23° 44' East 95.62 feet to an iron bar; (14) thence North 0° 35' East 175.00 feet to the point and place of beginning.

Containing 9.023 acres. The westerly line of the above described premises follows generally the contour line of elevation 60 feet above mean sea level.

The above described parcel of land is a part of a certain real property owned by Philip Goldrick and wife to Philip Goldrick, Thomas F. Goldrick and Merton L. Goldrick dated September 20th, 1922 and recorded in the County of Ulster, New York, in the County Clerk's Office on March 13, 1947 in Liber 679 of Deeds at Page 245.

BEGINNING at a point in the southerly line of lands formerly of Larned such point of beginning at the intersection of the said lands with the property of Gordon Boice and S. J. Larned, said right of way to be a means of ingress and egress to the excepted parcel so long as owned by the parties of the first part.

The above described easement and right of way, which is intended to run with the land conveyed herein, was originally described, as well as the property conveyed herein, in a deed from Clara Borchardt to John F. Borchardt and Mary Ann Borchardt, by deed dated March 11, 1947, and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office on March 13, 1947 in Liber 679 of Deeds at Page 245.

Being the same premises described in a deed from John F. Borchardt and Mary Ann Borchardt to Ulster Marine, Inc., by deed dated September 22nd, 1969, and recorded on October 1st, 1969, in Liber 1233 of Deeds, Page 102.

Said premises to be sold subject to any state of facts an accurate survey would show, providing these facts do not make the title unmarketable, subject to all taxes, assessments, water charges and sales for same, if any, and subject to leases and tenancies, if any.

Memoriam

I loving memory of my darling wife, Anita V. Fitchner, who passed away Sept. 6, 1974. Just a thought of sweet remembrance. Just a memory sad and true. Just the love and sweet devotion Of one who thinks of you. You have never been forgotten dear.

Nor ever shall you be. You couldn't say goodbye to me. Perhaps it's just as well. I never could have said goodbye to one I loved so well. God saw you getting tired. A cure was not to be. So he put his arms around you. And whispered, "come with me."

Your loving husband,
George

Railroad Crossings Hearing

KINGSTON Three unguarded railroad crossings in Kingston were the subject of a mandatory public hearing this week by the Kingston Board of Education.

The school board must conduct a public hearing and take affirmative action to use such crossings, unguarded by either electronic or electrical warning systems.

Kenneth Hyatt, administrative assistant for pupil personnel services, said that the crossing on East Strand is the only logical way to get from the Ponckhockie section to the Delaware Avenue area, and is needed to give the district an alternative route up the hill in bad weather and for the convenience of handicapped children in the area.

A second crossing, on Murray Street near Kennedy School, was reopened recently to permit hauling coal to Hudson Cement, which recently converted from another fuel. The third crossing is at the upper entrance to Rondout Gardens.

Overlook School

WEST SAUGERTIES Overlook School of West Saugerties opens for the fall semester Monday, Sept. 8, under headmaster William Gantner.

The private boarding and day school was founded in 1974 by Gantner and Clayton Williamson, former teachers and school administrators for many years. Overlook is an accredited co-educational middle school offering a Regents curriculum including English and reading, history, science, Latin, math, geography, art, music and health.

Crush Sudan Coup

KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI) — Rebel army officers attempted a coup d'etat today against Sudanese President Jaafar Numeiry but were crushed within hours by loyalist troops, Radio Omdurman announced.

The radio said loyalist troops overran the Khartoum Airport radio station and other key installations seized by the rebels before dawn and "restored calm."

The fate of the coup's leader, identified as Lt. Col. Hassan Hussein Osman, was unclear. An official radio announcement said he had been killed. But Sudanese government sources later said he had only been wounded and was being held under guard at a military hospital.

The sources said Osman was shot three times by one of his own soldiers during an argument. They said his condition was serious.

Numeiry emerged from seclusion 11 hours after the pre-dawn coup and announced on nationwide radio the crisis was over.

There were indications, however, that some of the rebels had escaped. Numeiry broadcast an appeal to "search for the enemies of national unity" and "hand them over to the nearest police station."

He said the plotters were Communist-backed and received "vast amounts of money and help from abroad." He did not elaborate.

It was the second coup attempt against Numeiry since he himself seized power by force in May, 1969. Army officers backed by Sudan's outlawed Communist party tried to seize power in July, 1971, but were defeated after three days.

Radio Omdurman said the plotters this time included junior army officers, Communists, and members of the Moslem Brotherhood, an extremist religious sect outlawed in the Sudan and other Arab countries.

The uprising began about 2 a.m. when the rebels cut off access to the airport and seized its radio station which they held until they were overpowered by loyalist troops five hours later.

In a brief radio broadcast shortly after the coup began, Osman, its leader, announced that Numeiry had been overthrown and all the state's main governing bodies dissolved.

He announced an amnesty for political prisoners and said the aim of his coup was to restore independence to the courts and universities, establish freedom of the press and "protect the country against fascism and establish a true democracy."

Vice President Mohammed Ali Bagir Ahmed later announced that loyalist troops were "in full control" of all strategic positions. He said the government would move immediately to crack down on political opposition and "run down the remnants of the defunct political parties which still dream 'of overthrowing Numeiry.'" He apparently meant the Communists.

"The revolution will hit with an iron fist any traitors and outlaws," he said. Numeiry said the group of officers led by Osman was "so small they could not even hold a small street long enough, let alone the country." He praised the army for moving quickly to crush the coup.

Grant For Culinary Institute

HYDE PARK A $40,000 federal grant has been awarded to the Culinary Institute of America by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The funds will be used to purchase equipment for the enrichment of the food and beverage demonstration, preparation and service courses and cost control courses at the institute.

Henry Ogden Barbour, president of the institute, said the grant will be matched by institute funds.

A portion of the grant will enable the school to establish an Applied Food Sanitation Laboratory where students will study the proper hygienic maintenance of work areas where food is prepared and further develop sanitary methods of handling various foods. Microscopes, incubators and a sterilizer, in addition to other laboratory equipment, will be bought with the grant funds.

All of our instructors stress the importance of a clean kitchen in preparing fine foods," said Barbour. "An entire instructional cycle is devoted to sanitation, and this federal grant will help make that program an even more valuable learning experience."

The Culinary Institute currently has a sanitation course in its curriculum, stressing the need for food protection, storage and personal hygiene practices. Attention is focused on basic bacteriology and its relation to food-borne illness. Sanitation ordinances and codes are reviewed and actual inspections are conducted. Emphasis is placed on developing a sanitation program that is related to safety, fire prevention and Occupational Safety and Health Act requirements. The funds from the grant will serve to enhance the program and broaden its scope.

The federal grant will also enable the institute to purchase electronic calculators for use by students in the institute's cost control laboratory. "With individual calculators, students will be more easily able to perform accurate computations and to manipulate data on store room inventories, portion sizes, wholesale market prices, forecasting of sales and amounts to purchase or requisition," according to David Geller, coordinator of operational procedures at the institute.

Award to Harriman

WEST POINT Former New York Governor and Ambassador W. Averell Harriman will receive the 18th annual Sylvanus Thayer Award from the U.S. Military Academy for outstanding service to the nation in ceremonies to begin at 4:50 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 9, at West Point.

In receiving the U.S. Military Academy's highest honor, Harriman will join such notables as President Eisenhower, Francis Cardinal Spellman, Bob Hope, the Rev. Billy Graham and Gen. Omar Bradley.

The public is invited to attend parade ceremonies which will begin at 4:50 p.m. Harriman served under Presidents Roosevelt and Truman as ambassador to the U.S.S.R. and Great Britain and as ambassador at large under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson. He was governor of New York from 1954 to 1958.

The Sylvanus Thayer Award is presented annually by the Association of Graduates to an outstanding American citizen whose service in the national interest exemplifies personal devotion to the ideals expressed in the academy's motto: "Duty, Honor, Country."

Congresswoman Holtzman To Be at DeStefano Dinner

ROSENDALE Congresswoman Elizabeth Holtzman will be the featured speaker at a fund-raising dinner-dance on Saturday, Sept. 20, at the S.R.S. Resort honoring Barbara DeStefano, a Democratic candidate for Ulster County Legislature from District 6 (Rosendale).

The affair begins at 7 p.m. Ms. DeStefano, a two-term Rosendale village trustee, has been active in Democratic Party affairs for ten years, serving as a committeewoman in the 1st election district (village) since 1968. She was the first woman elected town chairman, a post she held for five years until her resignation in 1973. She has also served on the Ulster County Executive Committee for the past seven years. This year, she was the first woman in the county to win the Democratic Party's nomination to the Ulster County Legislature; subsequently, nine other women were nominated in their districts.

William Torcherman, Rosendale Town Committeeman and chairman of the dinner-dance, said, "I'm delighted that Congresswoman Holtzman has chosen to honor Barbara in this way. In doing so, she is paying tribute to the party's wisdom in recognizing its talented women members. We hope lots of people who also believe in the strength of our political system will come to the dinner-dance."

Ms. Holtzman, a Brooklyn Democrat, first attracted national notice when she ousted long-entrenched House Judiciary Committee Chairman Emmanuel Celler in a primary victory. Later, she was a member of the Judiciary Committee that returned articles of impeachment in 1974.

Tickets are available from Torcherman, Joyce Juhl ticket chairman.

N-Plant Talk By Dr. Egemeier

WEST PARK Church of the Ascension, Route 9W, West Park. Following that meeting, opponents of the proposed nuclear power complex intend to form a new organization to encompass all persons from the Mid-Hudson area.

"Dr. Egemeier has reviewed ASDA's reports in detail and is raising rather serious questions concerning bias and the validity and usefulness of these reports," said Mrs. Shirley Brand, co-chairperson of CCOH. "I think it is important to note that Dr. Egemeier is not affiliated with our organization and is not even an opponent of nuclear power."

In his reviews, Egemeier disputes contentions by the Atomic and Space Development Authority (ASDA) that a nuclear generating facility in the Town of Lloyd would have no significant impact on climatic or meteorological conditions in the Mid-Hudson area.

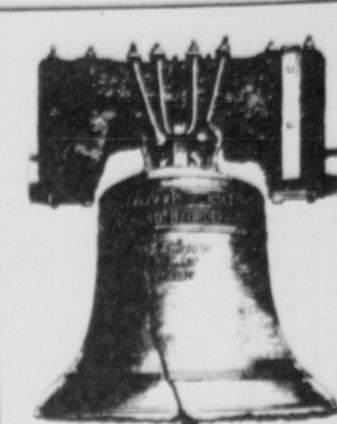

He claims that the data used to arrive at that conclusion is inaccurate and that the ASDA reports do not fully present the total impacts that natural draft cooling towers could have on the Lloyd area.

The public meeting on Monday will begin at 8 p.m. at the REGRET: Q. Two months ago I broke up with Michael. I'm going out with Tony now. I know that I hurt Michael real bad when I left him. I thought that by going out with Tony I could forget about how I hurt Michael, but I haven't.

Do you think I will get over breaking up with Michael?—Feeling Bad i New York

A. Yes, you will get over it. But I believe you have discovered a timeless truth—that in hurting others we often hurt ourselves even worse.

Be kind to yourself by being kind to those around you. Be helpful, thoughtful, cheerful, understanding. In helping others, no matter who they are, we help to ease our own pain.

NOTE: Q. I wrote a note to Ginny. It had a nasty remark in it about Joe. Joe is a bully and nobody likes him except Marie. Well, while Ginny was reading the note, Joe came by and grabbed it and read it.

Now everybody is tellin me that Joe is going to kill me. His friends are supposed to be watching for me so they can tell him where I am so he can find me and kill e. So far nothing has happened but I am really scared. Please help me.—Frightened Female in Pennsylvania

A. Notes are useful at times, but we should be careful what we put in them. It is unwise to put unkind thoughts into a note or letter. Your never know who may read it. Go to Joe and apologize to him for what you did. Tell him it won't happen again.

Ask him to forgive you. I don't think he will kill you. Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Jean Adams cannot send personal answers.

Employee Unions Lend NYC $100 Million

NEW YORK (UPI) — Today was the day New York City was supposed to fold. It didn't.

In last-minute maneuvering Thursday, the municipal employee unions agreed to lend the city $100 million in pension funds to avoid default.

The city will have money to pay off some 35,000 welfare checks mailed Thursday and meet various other obligations, including a $7.1 million sanitationmen's payroll, through funds supplied by its unions.

"We have received assurances that they will be supportive of the city in voting the pension funds," said a spokesman for Mayor Abraham Beame.

Now default could come as early as Sept. 15, when the city must meet about $500 million in obligations if a $2.3 billion financing plan is not worked out.

Labor leaders, according to the mayor's office, said they would use $100 million in their pension funds to purchase bonds sold by the Municipal Assistance Corp. — the state agency created to raise money for the city. The money then will be turned over to the city treasury.

Beame reversed himself and agreed to a proposal that would turn over much of his fiscal power to a state-dominated board of overseers while raising the $2.3 billion needed to keep the city solvent through early December.

A special session of the state legislature convened by Gov. Hugh Carey was prepared to receive the plan later today after spending most of Thursday in party caucuses.

Beame reluctantly dropped his opposition to the plan that would put general control of city finances in the hands of a board composed of himself, the city comptroller, the governor, the state comptroller and a fifth member appointed by the governor.

The mayor said Thursday the plan was "something we can live with."

Beame earlier called the plan "a takeover of the city by the state," but shifted his position when it became apparent the state legislation was the last resort to default.

But legislative sources suggested privately a majority of the legislators would not be able to accept the complicated financing plan, designed to meet city debts through Dec. 10.

It was hinted the legislature eventually might approve a plan to oversee default by the city and a long-term revision of its fiscal system.

Welfare High In Big Cities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New big city welfare statistics show that while unemployment was skyrocketing this year to the highest national levels since World War II, one in every six persons was on welfare in Boston, Baltimore and Philadelphia.

In New York, Detroit, Newark and the District of Columbia, more than 2 percent of the population received welfare, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said.

In one of the first government reports attempting to show the relationships between welfare roles and rising joblessness, HEW said larger welfare case loads do not always go hand in hand with heavy unemployment.

In Baltimore, where the rate of unemployment was 5.5 percent, which was lower than the national average, 15.6 percent of the population was on welfare. But in Bergen County, N.J., where the rate of unemployment was 11.8, higher than the national average, only 1.3 percent was receiving welfare.

Other factors such as the proportion of population with low incomes, racial or ethnic makeup and median age of the residents and other characteristics of the population must be considered in determining the impact of joblessness on welfare rolls, the report said.

"However, widespread unemployment will diminish the amount of resources families have to meet living expenses, and lack of opportunities for part-time and-or unskilled jobs will especially adversely affect female-headed families in which the mother is the primary wage-earner and children's contributions augment family resources," HEW said.

The report lists welfare statistics for every county in the country as of February, when the national unemployment rate was 8.2 percent of the labor force.

Unemployment rates are shown for 66 counties and cities with populations of 500,000 or more, including 28 above the national rate. In the 66 areas, family welfare rates ranged from a low 0.9 in Du Page County, Ill., to 15.8 in St. Louis, Mo., the report said.

HEW listed these 10 big city areas with the highest proportion of the population receiving help under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program, showing the unemployment rate: St. Louis City, Mo., 15.8 receiving AFDC and 10.1 per cent unemployed; Baltimore City, Md., 15.6 and 5.5; Boston (Suffolk County), Mass., 14.5 and 9.1; District of Columbia, 14.0 and 4.8; Philadelphia County, Pa., 13.9 and 8.8; Newark (Essex County), N.J., 12.6 and 8.6; Atlanta (Fulton County), Ga., 11.6 and 7.0; New Orleans (Orleans Parish), La., 11.4 and 7.3; Detroit (Wayne County), Mich., 11.1 and 14.9, and New York City, 10.9 and 9.9.

Big Money Talk

New York City Mayor Abraham Beame, left, confers with Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut during a break in the special session of the Legislature in Albany. Lawmakers were called back to Albany to try to work out a $2.3 billion rescue plan for New York City. (UPI)

13-Cent Stamp Getting Closer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Raising the first-class stamp from 10 to 13 cents before Christmas will "infringe and seriously inconvenience" postal patrons, a key congressional committee chairman has warned the Postal Service.

The board of governors of the financially ailing Postal Service officially cleared another hurdle on the way to the 13-cent first-class stamp Thursday.

Under the postal laws, Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar can follow the governors' acceptance of a 10-cent permanent rate with a "temporary" increase of up to 30 percent after 90 days.

But Chairman James Hanley of the House postal service subcommittee said in a letter to Bailar that an increase before Christmas "would create great and unnecessary confusion among the millions of Americans who mail holiday greetings."

He said raising rates in early or mid-December "would be of minimal benefit to the Postal Service and would infringe and seriously inconvenience a large majority of your patrons."

"I therefore urge you and the board of governors to announce publicly that no new temporary rates will be placed into effect before January," Hanley said.

The board approved recommendations of the independent postal rate commission, an advisory body. Clearing the way for a 13-cent stamp first-class rate will help the Postal Service raise revenues that will curb deficits. This year the service expects a $1 billion deficit because of higher operating costs.

In acting on the rate commission's findings, the board of governors echoed Bailar's criticism that the commission had been too slow in reaching a conclusion on rate-making. The present 10-cent rate for first-class stamps has been the "temporary" rate since March, 1974.
